

The State of Collaboration in Australia:

Construction

Independent market research company Vanson Bourne surveyed 2,500 IT and business decision makers on the state of collaboration in their organisations. These are the results from 100 respondents in the construction industry in Australia.

A lack of productivity in construction is impacting business results

This, paired with other team-specific challenges, is resulting in:

Business success is dependent on reinventing the way that your teams collaborate

A connected workspace, which connects your content, tools and teams, is the first step towards improving collaboration and enabling teams

95% believe a connected workspace will improve business results by...

For more information on the survey and to explore the results, please visit stateofcollaboration.com

Dropbox commissioned independent market research specialist Vanson Bourne to undertake the research upon which this infographic is based. A total of 2,500 business and IT decision makers were interviewed during July and August 2019. All respondents are from organisations with 250 or more employees, and they must collaborate with at least one person on a daily basis, and also use software and applications to get their work done. The results shown here are based on the total sample of respondents from the construction industry in Australia.